Dear Sirs:

I was completely shocked to find out from your recent office letter that two of our barn signs have been transferred to a new property owner.

We have never been notified of this until now. The current property owner has been cashing a yearly rental lease check, as seen by the attachment.

The current sign lease for the barns is valid until June 1, 2024, unless the land owner decides to extend it (which we would prefer to do).

We do not own the barn structure, and if the property owner wants the barn or roof removed, they will have to be responsible for that. There are no stipulations for us removing advertising from the barns if the contract is not renegotiated. Typically, that is the job of the property owner.

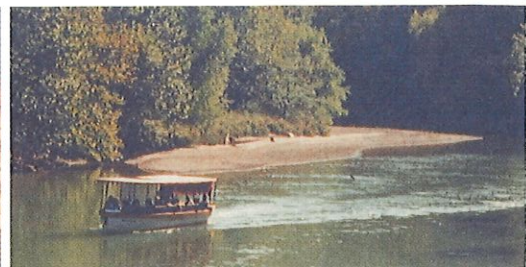

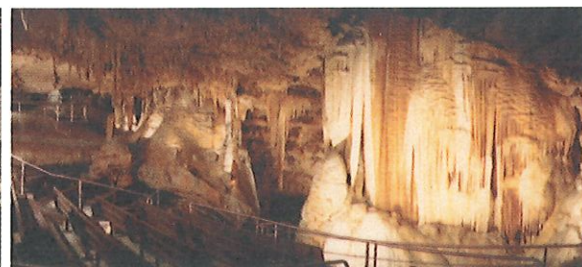

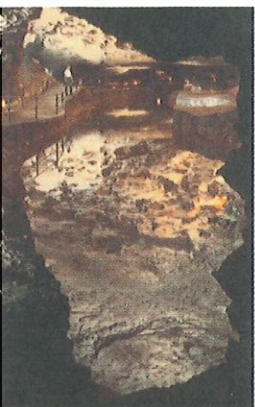

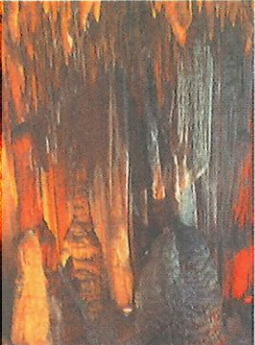

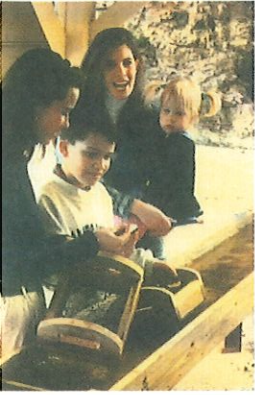

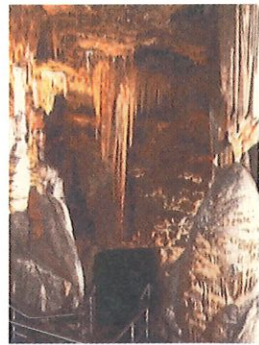

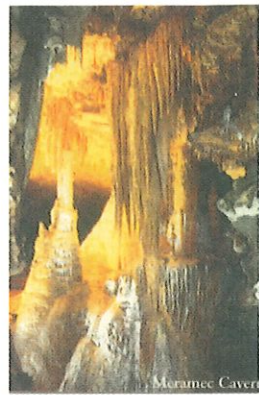

Sincerely,

Lester Turilli, Jr.
